CURRENT SPORTING GOSSIP.

Richmond baseball writers in town Richmond baseball writers in town with the champion Battle-ax amateur team are all of the opinion that Bay Morgan, the Nationals' diminutive third sacker, who was purchased from Danville, will make good. They seem to think Morgan's chances much brighter than those of Mattis, the Richmond outfielder who was also bought by the Washington management a short time ago. According to the Southern writers, Mattis is a clever fielder, but weak with the stick; while on the other hand all pitchers in the Virginia leagus looked allike to Morgan.

The Nationals are booked for morning and afternoon games against the Athand afternoon games against the Athletics in Philadelphia to-day. Bob Groom, Dixie Walker, and either Cashion or Becker will be in the box for the McAleer tribe, and to-morrow Walter Johnson will in all probability go against Connie Mack's champs, providing the Nationals split even to-day.

widing the Nationals split even to-day.

Mickey Keilher, the big first baseman of the Petersburg club of the Virginis League, is a Washimston boy, and only last year was performing around the sand lots. Keiliher has been purchased by Plitsburg and will go South with that club. Those in touch with affairs of the Virginia League say that Keiliher has improved 45 per cent since the season opened last April, and it is freely predicted that he will never drift back to that circuit if he fails to make good with the Pirates.

The Washington Cricket Club will hold

Scout Mike Kahoe left vesterday afternoon to join the Nationals in Philladel-phia. It is understood that Manager Mc-Aleer has a few ball players in view and wants Mike to take a squint at them.

The Giants have won the season's series from Pittsburg, Brooklyn and Cincinnatt, with a big edge on St. Louis and Boston. The only series they are likely to lose is with Philadelphia. The Phillies have made it is out of 16. They need only two of the remaining six games to win out in the interrity duel. The Cubs still have a chance to win their M-game series, but they need three out of four to make good.

Hack Works Hard On Eve of Match

Gotch Takes Things Easy and Witnesses Ball 1912 Cole, 30-40-$1,800 Game-Both Wrestlers in Pink of Condition for Championship Bout.

Hackenschmidt and Gotch will be in evi-dence until they step upon the mat to-morrow. After that it will be interesting to note how the ... "d work and the exelternent of the contest affects the men-To-day was to have been a day of rest with Hackenschmidt. An impulse caused him to change his programme, and he put in a strenuous hour with his henchmen. Roller, Americus, and Koch. This simply meant that to-morrow's affair is so much in Hack's thoughts that keeping still is more of a strain than working. Gotch, on the contrary, was as care Gotch, on the contrary, was as care-free as ever. At his hotel in the morning he mingled with friends and chatted mer-rily, conveying the idea that to-morrow's tussle is the last thing he is thinking about. In the afternoon he took in the hall game, and, according to all accounts, enjoyed himself thoroughly. Some people are at a less to account for this great difference in the gladiators, but it is easy enough to explain.

Hack Is Anxious.

The Bussian is simply eaten up He is more than easer to make Seen at a Glance ends for his indifferent showing when amends for his indifferent showing when he wrestled Gotch before, and he is im-patient for the fray to begin. That's the word-impatient. It is that, and not fear that is bothering Hack. When he settles to his work to-morraw, whose persons who have suspected him of be-looks like—is nothing less than a pression of supreme confidence at lief that he learned all that is learned about Hackenschmidt when met before; that he tested the strength and the Lion's endurance strength and the Lion's endurance, an at the same time gained a good general knowledge of the things depended uponly Hackenschmidt to insure victory. One of Gotch's adherents has volunteered the information that Frank watering afraid to go to the mat wit Hackenschmidt in their last affair—the is, afraid in a wresting sense. It was Gotch's tribute to the superior knowledge of holds and locks which he believed the world's famous Russian possessed.

Gotch Has No France.

What Gotch learned on that occasion has changed his ideas completely. He believes now that Hackenschmidt is not the terror he was supposed to be, and in order to prove it, it is said that Frank is as eager to get into the awirl of things to-morrow as he was loath before. In other words, if Hackenschmidt wants to get down to business early in the match, things will take a different aspect. Hack too, is heavier; he weighed 210 at the last meeting, and to-day he scales 25. It will certainly be a struggle for supremacy between athletes of heroic proportions, and, with a fair field and to favorite, it should be a contest to live the terror he was supposed to be, and
